of democracy and cooperation, through socialization, education and recreation. Miss Taplin spoke of the great need of a clib center in Norwich for young women as there is no common meeting place where girls can get together and help one another. The ideal of all and help one another. The ideal of all club life is to have and to share, and a well organized club offers social and educational opportunities, develops judgment, initiative and executive ca-pacity and establishes nobler ideals of life.

Three fundamental principles are necessary to a club's progress, self government, non-materianism, allowing no creed, religion or nationality to debar anyone from membership, and

There is no doubt that a Girls' club in Norwich is a very much needed institution and the meeting gave every Mrs. George A. Frink of Otrobando end a hotel or two and a few summer cottages, and for the rest it is a great poultry range, where are raised in astonishing quantities chickens and ducks and turkeys and geese.

If the now rumored plans are carried out, the poultry will have to move before long to some spot that has less strategiv military value. Young John Hays Hammond has invented a wireless controlled torpedo which it is anticipated has wonderful possibilities. Old Store on Elm Avenue Corner Has White's Class Organizes-Entertainment Rehearsed.

The changing of occupants of the tore at the corner of Elm avenue and Old Cemetery lane suggests to elder-ly people here the many and frequent changes on that corner and the many times the property has been transfer-red. The northerly part of the land on which Herbert Hale's store stood was bought and sold five times be-tween 1734 and 1742. The Goodbue property just below was bought in 1771 by John Perit. Later both properties were joined and after being many times bought and sold came into the possession of William Cleve whose heirs deeded them to "leveland's son-in-law, George A. Fulled. For many years he kept the store at the old stand. Mrs. Lewis A. ## A Word About Imported

Dolls and Toys It is the general impression that no Dolls and Toys were imported this year on account of the European war. It may be that many dealers have been disappointed in not being able to have their orders for foreign goods filled. But that is not true in our case. We placed our import order early in year, and the result of our foresight is that we have received every dozen of Dolls and Toys that we ordered. This is good fortune for us and for the public, as it means that we will show this season the largest line of Imported Dolls and Toys that we have ever shown.
